Attention on the Beach

The idea of installing a beach-entry fiberglass pool in an actual beach appealed to Scott Prunty, especially given the pool would be a central feature at a local surfing contest in Virginia Beach Va. With a short window to install and fill the pool, Prunty and his team pulled it off, creating a sensational VIP activity hub.

Echoes of Innovation

At the turn of the 20th Century, San Francisco's Sutro Baths was the world's largest indoor aquatic facility. Although now in ruins, the baths are still a popular spot for visitors looking for a glimpse of the city's storied past and a classic example of watershaping innovation. During their heyday, the baths transformed the public swimming experience.
