Featuring

Birdbaths & Beyond

Gardens that combine birdbaths, feeders and bird-friendly planting plans significantly enhance the bird-watching experience for avian-minded homeowners. The variety of bird species that visit, each with its unique behaviors and characteristics, provides endless entertainment and even educational opportunities, as well as a rewarding connection to nature.

Remembering Dr. Wallace J Nichols

Scientist, visionary and author of the paradigm-shifting book "Blue Mind," Wallace J Nichols, passed away June 10th. He leaves behind a legacy best defined by understanding the human relationship with water, nature and ourselves. A memorial fund has been established in his honor with the hope that his important work will live on.

Diving into Softscape (Celebrating 25 Years of WaterShapes)

From its debut in 1999 to this day, WaterShapes has always featured plants in the editorial mix, including a nine-year run of columns by landscape designer and writer, Stephanie Rose, as well as a host of prominent landscape architects covering the fine points of combining plantings with bodies of water. In this vintage discussion from March 2002, Rose dives into the role of grasses in the planting-design palette.
